

SCORES WILSON AND LEAGUE IN STUMP SPEECH

Major Atkinson Tells Crowd That League Pact Is Trouble-Maker in Republican Rally Last Night.

WOMEN ARE A FACTOR

Says Europeans Are Preparing to Pounce On Each Other As Soon As Man Power Is Sufficient.

"The League of Nations is a trouble maker. Stay out of Europe and her quarrels; be the master in your own house and ever let your shibboleth be 'Americanism for Americans,'" was the advice of Major Atkinson, who spoke under the auspices of the Republican Club at the courthouse last night. Major Atkinson is an Ohioan, who is touring the West in the interest of the Republican party. He is a graduate of two universities, Chicago and Harvard, and a soldier.

A captain in the army at the outbreak of the war, but too old to lead his men, he was placed in charge of hospital work in France.

It was while acting in this capacity that he was wounded, for which he received the Croix de Guerre from the French Government.

Later when he was in Italy he was made a Knight of the Crown, the highest order which can be conferred upon a foreigner by King Emmanuel.

"I came 5000 miles to take part in this campaign," said Major Atkinson, "and I am going to explain the League of Nations to you as a man who has spent three years in Europe, where I have been in closest contact with its peoples and among whom I heard the League discussed freely. I am glad to speak in democratic Missouri of today and in republican Missouri of tomorrow," says Major Atkinson.

"The women will be a great factor in the coming election, even more than they were in the last, and they will not be slipped up on again. The women realize that they owe their suffrage to the Republican party, for twenty-nine out of the thirty-six states which ratified the nineteenth amendment were republican states. I do not charge the Democrats with intentionally wrecking the country. Their intentions were good but they didn't know how to steer. If there has been any wise moves made in the last eight years we must give the President credit for them; likewise we must lay the blame for the unwise acts at his door, for who will deny that for the last eight years Mr. Wilson has been the Democratic party. A one-man party means a one-man rule and such a situation must be avoided.

"I am not going to be a straddler. Roosevelt said 'stay away from straddlers'; and I say 'Amen.'"

Major Atkinson paid a high tribute to the American soldier and civilian. "The two million American soldiers cleaned up the biggest job that any nation ever attempted. It was not the American army in Europe that whipped Germany, but rather the army which would come if it was necessary. America, with her untold resources, cannot be aroused with impunity."

In speaking of the overtures of the President and of the conditions in Europe, Major Atkinson said: "Mr. Wilson's ideas looked fine on paper but when launched were impractical and ridiculous. Any attempt at the pacification of Europe is likely to be a failure. There is a state of unrest throughout the continent. The people of Europe have been lying to and stealing from one another for the last thousand years."

TO ORGANIZE A GUARD UNIT IN COLUMBIA

Opening of Old Armory to Mark the Beginning of New Battery B Here.

MEMBERS TO GET PAY

Thirty-Two Head of Horses and Full Field Equipment Will Be Furnished.

The first step toward reorganization of a National Guard unit in Columbia will be taken next week when the old Armory at Broadway and Tenth street is opened. The unit will be known as Battery B, First Missouri Field Artillery. Capt. Wilbur F. Maring, of the adjutant-general's staff, has been detailed to direct the organization of the unit temporarily.

Entertainments will be given at the Armory every evening next week, and it will be attempted to make the Armory into a clubroom for the members of the unit.

Under the Army Reorganization Bill, the old system of pay on a percentage basis is abolished and the members of the unit will receive pay for every time they attend drill. The pay will vary from $5 to $12.50 for enlisted men. The officers will receive pay at the same ratio. There will be four men regularly enlisted to take care of the thirty-two head of horses and other equipment. These men will give their entire time to the work and will be paid $100 a month.

The equipment of the battery will be four American 3-inch rifles and full field equipment. All this will be supplied by the government. The state will furnish complete equipment of clothing.

The old Company F Armory in the Over Building will be kept open and the state will supply lights, heat and water for the use of the members at all times.

Men who have had previous service are allowed to enlist for one year; but men who have had no service are required to enlist for three years. There is no reserve clause in either enlistment. Discharges from the unit will be given for permanent change of residence, change of residence to another state, interference with civilian occupation or inaptitude for military service.

Columbia's former National Guard unit was Company F, Fourth Missouri Infantry, which later became part of the 139th U. S. Infantry. This organization was part of the famous Thirty-Fifth Division and has a wonderful record. During the Meuse-Argonne offensive this company was one of the few that made the farthest advance of the division, to the little town of Exermont. It suffered heavy losses.

LAUNDRY GIRLS PLAY BASKET BALL AT NOON AND PLAN GOOD TIMES

A scrimmage, a shrill feminine shriek, and the ball is dribbled across the floor. The whistle blows and—"Shucks, it's time to go back to work."

Such is the scene that anyone who is lucky enough to get a peep into Columbia Hall any noon time may see. It isn't the practice of the high school basketball team, nor is it the women's physical education class of the University, but it is the play hour of the girls employed at the Dorn-Cloney Laundry. The employes have formed a club, and the management has allowed them to use Columbia Hall. Besides the basketball court a well furnished rest room has been fitted up where the girls may enjoy their noon hour in rest before returning to their afternoon work.

J. S. Millburn, manager of the plant here, is now making plans for obtaining books for a library where fiction, classics and current periodicals will be on hand for use of the girls.

The club has several plans for entertainment under way for the coming fall and winter. Last Thursday a writer toast started the season and many similar excursions and parties are being looked forward to during the year.

The girls are taking considerable interest in their organization, and the management believes that it is one of the methods of obtaining more efficient work from its employes.
